Friends, Lovers, Co-Workers, and Community: Everything I Know about Relationships I Learned from Television (Lexington Studies in Communication and Storytelling)

Friends, Lovers, Co-Workers, and Community analyzes how television narratives from the first decade of the twenty-first century are powerful socializing agents which both define and limit the types of acceptable interpersonal relationships between co-workers, friends, romantic partners, family members, communities, and nations. This book is written by a diverse group of scholars who used a variety of methodological and theoretical approaches to interrogate the ways through which television molds our vision of ourselves as individuals, ourselves as in relationships with others, and ourselves as a part of the world. This book will appeal to scholars of communication studies, cultural studies, media studies, and popular culture studies.
